I grew up in rural Tillamook County, and this bill could impact the childhood home that I plan to return to at retirement. Firearms training is not a farming-related activity, and would impact the surrounding dairies and livestock. In addition, Tillamook farmland floods regularly and is generally right next to rivers. The lead pollution from firearms use is not acceptable, especially in an area frequently used by water birds and draining directly into sloughs and waterways leading to bays that were formerly productive oyster habitat. Oregon has plenty of forested areas where this kind of activity could occur more logically and with less impact on the economic and environmental health of the state. Please do not pass this bill.
