Chair Shields and members of the General Government, Consumer and Small Business Protection,

I support SB 574, which gives a representative the authority to place a security freeze on protected consumer reports. Maryland has just implemented a similar law.[1] Sen. Prozanski surely is thinking about compromised data subsequent to a data breach of 16,000 records in the Eugene School District[2].

Children are 51 more times vulnerable to financial fraud with identity theft.[3] Reverse engineering social security numbers is easier since the "Enumeration at Birth" initiative of the late 1980's where parents are encouraged to apply for social security numbers at the birth of their baby.[4]

With so much BIG DATA collected, Oregon also needs a Chief Privacy Officer to assist agencies on policy making, such as this.[5] I hope members of this committee support SB 567.[6]
