BACKGROUND: The World War II generation is known as The Greatest Generation for a reason: Its quiet, indelible, collective national sacrifice, and unity of effort, to bring down the most horrific enemy the world had yet known; and then recover. The example set by the World War II generation continues to inspire subsequent generations, the world over. Senate Bill 832 designates every second Sunday in August, the Spirit of '45 Day, to commemorate not only the Greatest Generation's extraordinary contributions, but the enduring model of service, cooperation, hard work, humility, and selfless courage they exemplify.
