Bureau of Labor and Industries

Brad Avakian, Commissioner

2013-2015 Budget presentation

Protecting workers and industry

The Bureau of Labor and Industries protects Oregon's workforce, supports Oregon employers through technical assistance, and strengthens our state's economy by helping to create a pipeline of highly skilled, well-trained workers.

We provide:

- Apprenticeship and training
- Civil Rights protection
- Wage and hour enforcement
- Technical assistance for employers

Access to career schools

Strengthen
Oregon's workforce by ensuring equal access to career schools

Civil Rights Division

Funding Source: Federal Funds for EEOC and HUD contracts; Workers' Benefit Fund, OSHA Contract; General Fund.

Civil rights inquiries are increasing.

Civil Rights Inquiries

Civil Rights Division Complaints

Complaints filed

Program innovation

- New triage system helps maximize investigation resources
- Provides a quicker path to justice for workers and greater certainty for Oregon businesses
- Complaints are reviewed at the time of filing and classified into three categories:
  - A Cases: Likely violation
  - B Cases: Needs further investigation
  - C Cases: No apparent violation

Civil Rights Division: Measurement

- 85% of inquiries received responses within two business days
- Initial interviews were conducted in an average of 54 days (with the goal of completing 65% within 45 days and completing 65% of total investigations within 180 days)
- Completed 58% of civil rights investigations within our target time frame, notably faster than the federal process
- The division fell short during the first three quarters of FY 2012, but actually exceeded the target by two percentage points (67%) during the fourth quarter

Schedules contested case hearings within 30 days of receiving the case.

Cases Settled

Settled 82% of the cases assigned to it in FY 2012 without requiring a contested case hearing.

Efficiency

Reduced the amount of time to resolve cases by 30% in FY 2012.

Administrative Prosecution Unit Cases

- Hearings can cost the State of Oregon upwards of $7,000 or more.
- In FY2012, 82 percent of cases were settled without the need for a contested case hearing, saving taxpayer dollars.

Cases to Administrative Prosecution Unit (2011-2012)

Administrative Prosecution Unit

In December, the APU began double-setting cases for hearing, similar to a circuit court docketing, to enable parties to achieve settlements or final dispositions more quickly.

The agency also plans to expand its use of pre-hearing mediation using existing resources made available in the reorganization.
