A portion of the cost allocation process has been performed in excel spreadsheets that required some manual entry of statistics each month. In September, the previous month's data had not been removed prior to processing the new data. As a result, the statistics became a blended two month average and was not calculated in accordance with the cost allocation plan. The review process in place did not and would not have picked up this error. The Office of Financial Services has analyzed the impact of the error and made adjustments as appropriate.

The Office of Financial Services implemented a new cost allocation model in July 2011 in which now only relies on one remaining spreadsheet that needs to be automated. The manual intervention of the remaining spreadsheet is to be eliminated by September 2012. The current model in use has eliminated the possibility of this human error happening again.

The automation of the last remaining spreadsheet is complete and currently in testing. It is expected to be put into production beginning February 1, 2013.

- We recommend the Department remove conflicting access rights where it can. In those instances where the conflict remains, the Department should develop and implement a detective control to specifically address those instances.

The prior year's corrective action was not accomplished for the period ending June 30, 2011 due to staff resource issues. However the department is in the process of implementing appropriate controls to ensure that conflicting access rights are removed where they can be and there is a detective control in place to specifically address those instances.

Our corrective action has multiple parts:

- 1) DHS has developed expectations that field managers review the monthly Resource Access Control Facility (RACF) report for conflicting access of employees. To assist in this review a cheat-sheet for managers has been developed and distributed,*
- 2) DHS has removed access to perform any update capabilities from non-paid employees, i.e., volunteers and;*
- 3) DHS has developed and distributes monthly a Conflicting Access report. The report identifies employees who may have taken action using conflicting access on individual accounts for further review.*

10. DHS and OHA: Strategies to Better Address Federal Level of Effort Requirements, audit # 2012- 11, (dated April 2012)

- To maximize state resources, allocate General Funds strategically, and ensure continued compliance with Level of Effort requirements, we recommend management from Oregon agencies subject to federal Level of Effort requirements:
- encourage program staff to work with their federal agency contact to understand possible financial sources available to meet Level of Effort requirements, including funds outside of those directly budgeted for that program;
- work with the Legislative Fiscal Office to make information available to Oregon Legislative members explaining Level of Effort requirements and consequences for lack of compliance;
- conduct regular communications among program, financial, and budget staff within each agency to discuss Level of Effort compliance and cross-program expenditure possibilities; and

- strengthen certification procedures across programs to allow more cross-program expenditures while ensuring compliance with federal mandates.

While OHA and DHS generally agree that the recommendations are reasonable expectations, we are concerned that the report contains no specific analysis explaining if the additional efforts it recommends will generate benefits in excess of their anticipated additional costs. It is also unclear to OHA and DHS management how these recommendations should be prioritized amongst the other activities available to the agencies to improve efficiency and effectiveness. With that said, we do see opportunities to make improvements to our communication and coordination processes within the two agencies and with our other state and federal partners.

As can be seen in the report, Level of Effort is a very complex subject due to all the different grants and specific rules each grant requires. As such it can be difficult to apply general statements and recommendation regarding Level of Effort (LOE) requirements to all of the grants listed in the audit. For some of grants administered by OHA and DHS some of the specific details of the above recommendation do not apply. For the Medicaid and the Children's Health Insurance Program, the LOE requirements are eligibility based and not expenditure level based. Another grant, the Senior Community Services Employment Program, only requires that placement of an enrollee not supplant normally budgeted positions or contract work at the host agency. There are also grants, such as the Block Grants for the Prevention and Treatment of Substance Abuse, that have historically only allowed expenditures from the recipient agency in determining compliance with the LOE requirement.

OHA and DHS agree that Oregon agency management (including program, fiscal and budget staff) need to understand their grant requirements. We also agree, and do, actively work with the Legislative Fiscal Office (LFO), and the Department of Administrative Services, Chief Financial Office (CFO) to communicate, maintain and ensure compliance with these grant requirements. While we also feel for many of the grants administered by OHA and DHS, we are currently engaged in these discussions at the level necessary, there may be some efforts that could be improved.

Both agencies will review our current communication and coordination efforts related to the individual grants identified in the report to determine if improvements are needed. This will include consideration of a more formalized internal and external meeting structure to discuss ongoing LOE issues and possible changes in other agency programs that may impact LOE (both opportunities and challenges when programs are reduced).

For some grants, such as TANF, we spend significant time analyzing funding opportunities and have put in place a "certification process" as a way to both have routine communications with partner agencies and document other agency LOE related expenditures. We continue to partner with non-traditional MOE programs such as the food banks to explore possible additional opportunities. We also agree there may be additional funding opportunities available and will work with CFO and LFO as necessary to resolve cross-agency issues as they arise.

We will review our programs to determine if there is funding that is in excess of current grant requirements that could help other programs or grants meet their LOE needs. We will continue to work with LFO and CFO to help facilitate the communication of new opportunities as they arise, keeping in mind sufficient analysis is always necessary prior to using any new LOE source to meet specific grant expenditure level requirements.

Both agencies recently made changes to internal grant application processes which enhanced the communication between program and fiscal staff prior to the grant applications being submitted. Both agencies have also continued to actively work with the LFO, and DAS-CFO to communicate, maintain and ensure compliance with these grant requirements. This includes recent detailed history and estimates for the Governor's Budget Process to allow BAM to account for MOE issues as much as possible in the 2013-15 budget process. The agencies have communicated to LFO and CFO any LOE/MOE requirements that are directly tied to all reduction options that might be considered to meet statewide revenue shortfalls. In addition, the agencies continue to work with other internal programs, agencies or private entities to maximize MOE.

11. DHS: Child Welfare Program: Strategies to Help Caseworkers Reunite More Families, audit # 2012- 12, (dated April 2012)

- We recommend that Child Welfare district offices and branches share locally-developed practices or systems that support caseworkers, create efficiencies, and develop caseworker skills.
- We recommend the Department of Human Services Child Welfare Program:
 - Evaluate and set priorities among the expected caseworker duties contained in their Child Welfare procedures manual.
 - Routinely gather and share potential best practices among districts.
 - Consider assigning a program manager dedicated to returning children home at the central office to provide better direction and support to enhance caseworker practices. The manager's responsibilities could also include working with other Child Welfare Managers to evaluate and set priorities among current return home practices and ensure best practices are distributed among districts.
 - Continue with efforts to implement a policy of annual employee performance evaluations to encourage professional development, improve working environments and better achieve the program's mission.
 - Evaluate whether support staff could help alleviate caseworkers' workload burden by providing more assistance on administrative tasks. This should include determining if support staff need additional, but adequately controlled access to the program's OR-Kids system.
- We recommend federal reconsideration of current funding practices to determine whether alignment with the federal goal of returning children to their families would produce better outcomes.

As stated in the draft audit report, there are a number of competing demands on child welfare caseworkers as they navigate their day-to-day work with families. Other groups and agencies are involved in the decision making process that must be coordinated, and there has been an increase in the expected activities of a caseworker without adequate increases in resources. Child welfare is staffed at approximately 67% of the need given the current workload and there are tasks that go undone every day.

As also stated in the draft audit report, child welfare work is complex. Each family is unique and requires the expertise of the caseworker and supervisory support to craft the plan that will afford the best chance of success and reunification of the family. Despite this, Oregon returns children to their parents at a rate higher than the national average.

While Oregon has a state administered system, there is a differentiation of roles and duties between the Central Office child welfare staff and the field child welfare staff. The promulgation of rules and procedures, and the consultation that helps maintain fidelity in application of those rules and procedures, is work done by staff in Central Office. The actual work with families occurs through state employees in 16 Districts around the state.

The department is in agreement with the recommendation that priorities need to be set among the expected duties contained in the Child Welfare procedures manual. Given the demands and expectations of the work and the current staffing levels, prioritization is critical. The decisions regarding which tasks will be left undone must occur close to where the work with families is being done in order to take into consideration the uniqueness of the situations in each case. Caseworkers are required to have specific training to do their work, and their expertise combined with the clinical supervision of their direct supervisor are needed to provide the case management that is required for families to be successful. It is in this relationship between a caseworker and their supervisor that the prioritization of work is done. A static list of priorities issued from Central Office will not serve families well and could leave children in unsafe settings. Each month at the District and Program Managers meetings, workload is an agenda item and there are a number of suggested areas where some changes in rule and procedure could result in workload reduction. Some have already been implemented and some will take longer to evaluate and implement. These meetings also provide a forum for the discussion between field managers and Central Office managers on practice innovations, efficiencies and caseworker skills assessments.

Potential best practices are also discussed at both the District and Program Manager meetings; however, there has not been a schedule for these conversations. In order to ensure a regular and timely discussion of innovations to practice, this topic has been added to the monthly meetings where District Managers and Child Welfare Program Managers meet jointly.

The Child Welfare Program managers have designated time in their monthly agenda to discuss best practices and hot topics. Child Welfare supervisors have also been discussing local best practices during their round table conversations at quarterlies. For caseworkers, we have re-initiated Child Protective Services quarterlies across the state, to allow for practice forums and case-specific dialogue in an effort to improve consistency and expertise. These quarterlies are also attended by Central Office staff responsible for working with branches and they are able to reinforce the sharing subsequent to the quarterly when they visit the branches.

The department recently implemented a change in the organizational structure of Central Office and focused all child welfare programs in one program area, the Office of Child Welfare Programs. Within this office, we are in process of repurposing resources we have to better align with the work in the field, including increasing our consultation resources focused on our return home practice. There is no additional program manager to dedicate solely to returning children home, so this work will have to occur within the resources currently allocated and will take some time. This will be especially challenging as the department takes steps to implement House Bill 4131. The department anticipates this work will be fully implemented by January 2013.

In addition, the department is engaged in a number of efforts to safely and equitably reduce the number of children in the foster care system. The legislature provided an initial investment in the state's plan to move toward a child welfare system of Differential Response. This initiative will focus on engaging families differently with a focus on maintaining children at home, decreasing the number of children that will experience foster care. In addition, legislation was passed in the 2011-13 session which created Strengthening, Preserving and Reunifying Families Programs. These programs are a collaboration of a broad array of services, which are the primary method of service delivery to families involved in the child welfare system. The combination of Differential Response and this new service array will significantly increase the number of families that are able to safely parent their children while addressing the issues that brought them to the attention of the child welfare program.

The department is engaged in other initiatives as well, which are focused on returning and maintaining children at home. Specifically, we have invested in In-Home Safety and Reunification Services, and continue to work with a select number of counties in collaboration with Casey Family Programs, the courts, and the Early Learning Council and Youth Development Council to look innovatively at strategies to safely and equitably reduce the number of children in foster care. The number of counties involved in this collaboration was increased last year, and an additional increase is anticipated in the coming biennium.

As stated in the draft audit report, the department has begun the implementation of the Performance Feedback Model. The implementation and evaluation of that model is an outcome measure on the department's Fundamentals Map as well as the Child Welfare Fundamentals Map, and a topic of the department's and program's Quarterly Business Reviews. Since implementing this practice, Child Welfare has improved by 30% over the last quarter in the number of workers who have an Employee Development Plan. Work continues with the districts to increase this measure with a goal of 100% within the next year.

In the development of the technology system that supports child welfare, OR-Kids, the documentation of activities done by the various staff that work with families was required to be entered by the individual that did the work. This resulted in an increase in the documentation activities of the caseworker that in the prior system, may have been entered by support staff. Because the OR-Kids system is a role based access system, support staff cannot enter material on behalf of the case worker. Since the implementation of OR-Kids, the department has been evaluating the design and actively looking for opportunities to improve on the design. One of these areas is the further evaluation of the role based assignments for entry of data. The department believes there are data entry activities that can be shifted back to support staff and is working to implement those changes.

As a pilot, District 3 Child Welfare (Marion County) has been working with Central Office and Lean Leaders to create a series of lean processes and branch protocols which will have statewide impact. Together, they have mapped out 42 business processes which were impacted by the implementation of the OR-Kids system, and designed the leanest business process flow for each of them in an effort to more closely align their work processes to the newly designed system, and create as much efficiency as possible in the processes. When combined, these individual processes comprise systems which identify positions responsible for specific parts of each process, and allow branches to make decisions about how to best maximize support staff, freeing caseworker time to work with families.

All District Managers and Program Managers have agreed to implement these business processes in their offices for all the work which takes place on a case in the first 30 days. Many of those processes (like Legal and Financial), once designed for the first 30 days, are also replicable for the entirety of the case. The exercise of deliberately going through this process will also produce branch protocol manuals, which can be used for local training. The plan for dissemination to the rest of the districts is in process. The six process areas which will be implemented for each office are:

- Legal,*
- Person Management,*
- Financial,*
- Service Entry,*
- Meetings, and*
- Provider Management.*

Finally, the department is in agreement with the recommendation that the federal government align the funding for child welfare with the national priorities of safely reducing the number of children in the foster care system. Oregon has been involved in providing feedback on several proposals for federal finance reform for the child welfare system. As opportunity arises, the department will continue to participate in this national conversation.

While progress has been made, efforts to fully implement the recommendations in this audit will continue with a goal of increasing the number of children who can safely return to their home and families.

2013-2015 DD Community Housing Fund Report

The DD Community Housing Program assists persons with developmental disabilities to live successfully in community housing that is affordable and safe and contributes to their independence and quality of life. DD Community Housing supports services to persons with developmental disabilities in the following ways:

- Oversees the property management of homes developed for the former Fairview State Training Center residents.
- Develops and manages and funds eligible home modification projects for In-Home and Crisis Services for children and adults with developmental disabilities.
- Coordinates the operation of the Fairview Community Housing Trust that was established with revenue from the sale of Fairview. The Trust funds small grants for home modifications to Oregonians with developmental disabilities living in their own or family home.
- Provides technical assistance to individuals, families, brokerages, and counties regarding housing issues faced by persons with developmental disabilities and best practices to implement solutions.

Funding for the program is maintained in three separate Treasury Fund accounts. Two of those accounts contain the proceeds from the sale of the Fairview State Training Center and the third is for the operating fund for maintenance, development, technical assistance, etc.

Fairview Community Housing Trust Accounts

The two accounts containing proceeds from the sale of the Fairview State Training Center are designated in statute as follows:

 Per ORS 427.340 "The Department of Human Services may expend, for the purposes of ORS 427.330 to 427.345, any earnings credited to the account, including any income from the lease of surplus property and* any interest earned on monies deposited in the account, and up to five percent of any sale or transfer proceeds initially credited to the account by the Oregon Department of Administrative Services. At least 95 percent of all sale or transfer proceeds shall remain in the account in perpetuity."

Historically the funding from the five percent of sale proceeds account as well as the accrued interest on both accounts has been used to provide grant funding to children and adults with developmental disabilities to allow for them to continue living in their own home or family home. There is a Fairview Trust Advisory Committee which oversees the grant awards and other policies governing the operation of the Trust. The committee membership includes former Fairview clients, family member of former Fairview clients, client advocates and others. Clients submit grant applications which are reviewed for eligibility and funding.

As part of the budget development process for 2011-2013 a reduction action was put forward to expend the balances out of the two Fairview Community Housing Trust Accounts. The action that was taken was to leave $6,000,000 in the corpus or 95% sale proceeds account and to use $5,970,375 from that account combined with the projected remaining balance in the 5% Fairview Grant account of $979,759 for a total of $6,950,134. This action was taken in year two of the biennium and the grant fund program suspended. A Policy Option package for 2013-15 will restore the corpus account to pre 11-13 balance, adding back $6,950,134 GF.

DD Community Housing Operating Account

When Fairview was downsized and eventually closed, the DD Community Housing Section in partnership with private non-profit housing developers constructed or remodeled 200 homes to provide housing for those residents and persons misplaced in nursing homes. It was called the Community Integration Project (CIP). The homes were funded by general obligation bonds sold by Oregon Housing and Community Service Department (OHCDSD) and incorporate many specialized features. Per an agreement with OHCDSD a reserve amount of $500,000 is required for this account to assure maintenance of an asset purchased with GO bonds.

The DD Community Housing Section allocates funds and provides oversight and technical assistance in order to develop, adapt and maintain safe and appropriate housing for children and adults with developmental disabilities that receive services funded and/or licensed by the Department of Human Services. The persons receiving services in Oregon live in a variety of settings. These include, among others, services to children living in family homes, adults and children in 24-hour licensed out of home services, foster care, and adults in apartments or private homes. Often, providing these services requires that housing be constructed, modified or adapted in order to meet the needs of persons and to assure that homes are safe and adapted to the unique needs of the persons who live there. In carrying out its responsibilities, the DD Community Housing Section:

- Manages the maintenance and repair program for 200 bond funded homes that provide housing for persons with developmental disabilities receiving 24 hour support;
- Provides technical assistance to families and support agencies regarding specialized home adaptations;
- Develops homes to meet critical client needs;
- Manages and allocates funding for housing adaptations for adults and children with developmental disabilities receiving funded services;
- Provides fiscal oversight of expenditures from the Housing Fund, and within the Fund, the Fairview Housing Trust Account.

Department of Human Services Gender Equity Report

The Department of Human Services (DHS) submits this report as required by ORS 417.270 (HB 3576 Equal Access to Appropriate Services for Girls and Boys) to report on our progress and plans in achieving equal access to appropriate services for males and females under age 18.

DHS has a department wide Gender-Specific Services for Children and Youth Committee to promote and coordinate service related issues. This committee included participation from the Coalition of Advocates for Equal Access for Girls and well as representatives from DHS programs providing services to children and youth.

A primary outcome of this committee was the issuance of department wide policy for providing gender-specific services for girls and boys. Oregon's Department of Human Services became the first human services agency in the nation to issue policy for gender-specific services for children and youth. During the last five years, the Department took steps to implement the gender-specific services policy in programs affecting children and youth. Managers of these programs became familiar with this policy in order to be able to incorporate principles in their specific works. Several DHS staff serving children and youth attended agency sponsored training regarding gender-specific services for girls and for boys. The sessions were conducted by experts in the field to promote services that effectively meet gender-specific needs. These initial trainings covered the following topics:

- What about gender; who are girls, who are boys, and how are they different? Why gender-specific services are important and how gender-responsive approaches are similar and different when providing and planning services to meet the physical, social and emotional needs of girls and boys.

- Understanding Boys, why and how to provide and plan services most responsive to the physical, social, and emotional needs of boys and young men. Real life examples and scenarios for successfully working with boys and young men from diverse backgrounds.
- Understanding Girls, why and how to provide and plan services most responsive to the physical, social, and emotional needs of girls and young women.

The purpose of the trainings and policy is to ensure that gender consciousness and related issues are integrated into the internal and external work of the department, through its programs, services, as well as the many delivery systems through which it provides services.

Budgetary information supporting this program is provided below:

Gender Equity Report

Child Welfare Average	50.0%	50.0%		303,858,301	153,754,344	150,103,956

Over the last biennium, Divisions worked to implement the policy by taking the following steps:

- Including language in contracts and Requests for Proposals (RFP) around gender specific services for children and youth expectations. An example of that in a Family Based Services Contract is: “services shall be based on known effective interventions for changing child abuse and neglect behaviors. All services shall be culturally appropriate and services to a child and youth shall be gender-specific services that effectively meet their needs.”
- Office of Contracts and Procurement (OC&P) Gender equity within DHS Contracts (2012), including DHS requests for proposals:
 - Requests include services to children and youth, with specific guidance surrounding gender specific expectations. Program staff request, continue to include language regarding gender specific service expectations.
 - Proposers are asked to describe their strategies to implement culturally appropriate and gender specific services.
 - RFP template includes language, “Services provided under any Contract awarded as a result of this RFP shall consider equal access for both males and females under 18 years of age. ‘Equal access’ means access to appropriate facilities, services and treatment, to comply with ORS 417.270.”
 - DHS contracts include the condition that: Contractors must provide services to DHS clients without regard to race, religion, national origin, sex, age, marital status, sexual orientation or disability (as defined under the Americans with Disabilities Act). Contracted services must reasonably accommodate the cultural, language and other special needs of clients.
 - The directions for the 118-Series Contracting Forms, includes a check box for gender specific services under Other Considerations. This provides program staff the reminder that this is an issue that should be considered when requesting contract documents.

- Providing directions in a series of contracting forms by including a check box for gender specific services under “other considerations.” This provides program staff a reminder that these services should be considered when requesting contract documents. (OC&P)
- Working with DOJ to clarify the scope of application and legal implications in the standard language under “Special Provisions” in our contract templates. The standard language in DHS personal services contracts has been updated to read: “Contractor shall provide equal access to covered services for both males and females under 18 years of age, including access to appropriate facilities, services, and treatment, to achieve the policy in ORS 417.270.” (OC&P)
- Providing training to new contracts’ staff and updating the rest of the staff on contracts and solicitations into which Gender Specific Services provisions were incorporated. Discussing the Gender-Specific Services policy at staff meetings. (OC&P)
- Child Welfare (CW) is requiring a description of diversity competency in how the organization program services will be sensitive, responsive and appropriate with gender specific services.
- Including language in RFP/Contract standards for new In-home Safety and Reunification Services. Examples of complete excerpts are:
 - "Specific cultural adaptation should be described in proposals for services. Proposers will be expected to describe a model for working with minority cultural groups disproportionately represented in the child welfare populations described in 5.4 District Requirements."
 - "Cultural Competence: is the process by which individuals and systems respond respectfully and effectively to people of all cultures, languages, classes, races, ethnic backgrounds, disabilities, religions, genders, sexual orientation and other characteristics in a manner that recognizes, affirms, and values the worth of individuals, families, and communities, and protects and preserves the dignity of each. Operationally defined, it is the integration and transformation of knowledge about individuals and groups of people into specific standards, policies, practices and attitudes used in appropriate cultural settings to increase the quality of services, thereby producing better outcomes. (Child Welfare Procedural Manual)"

- "Gender Specific Services: Refers to treatments, interventions, educational programs and approaches that comprehensively address the unique needs, strengths and risk factors of each gender and fosters positive gender identity development." (CW) Redesigning services and program standards with a Family Based Services Workgroup with the participation of child welfare staff, current contractors, Citizen Review Board representatives and other District participants. (CW)
- Continuing to review and provide feedback to contracted Behavioral Rehabilitation Services (BRS) shelter or residential treatment programs regarding their ability to provide services that are gender specific. (CW)
- Continuing to raise awareness with staff and providers through meetings to discuss and understand what gender specific services mean. (CW)
- Tracking current male/female ratios in all licensed child facilities and encouraging providers to participate in the Licensed Child Placing Agencies program review for assessment and monitoring.(CW)
- Program participation in the National Youth in Transition Database tracking program. (CW)
- Child Welfare continues to be engaged with the Coalition of Advocates for Equal Access for Girls by;
 - Having a DHS staff member attend the monthly Coalition meeting for education and information
 - Refer staff, community programs and inquiries to explore the website for Coalition of Advocates for Equal Access for Girls' <http://equalaccessforgirls.org>
- Member of Equity Foundation, collaborating with other agencies, universities, national partners and entities on model training program on equity, including gender equity. Accomplishments and future plans include:

- Launch of a web page offering resources, training curriculum for both private and public agencies to utilize trainings specific to the needs of each organization. www.rri.pdx.edu/lgbtq.php
- Development of training pilots to provide most current training available.
- Equity Foundation will continue to seek out grants to continue funding for the training program.
- Covering gender-specific services in meeting the needs of children and youth in depth in CORE training for Child Welfare Workers through the Child Welfare Partnership. (CW)
- Continuing to provide technical assistance to those programs that may be struggling to develop gender specific services. (CW)
- Residential Treatment Services and Licensing BRS system redesign was completed. It increased the number of designated programs for girls and young women. (CW)
- All of the BRS treatment services contracts require Contractors to provide gender and culturally specific, services. (CW)
- DHS Licensing Coordinators monitor child caring agencies with attention to gender considerations. (CW)
- A Staff from the Residential Treatment Services and Licensing unit attends the Coalition of Advocates for Equal Access for Girls as a DHS Liaison. (CW)
- "In 2009, a focused pilot was started to address diversity/cultural competency in addressing disparity and disproportionality in the largest district in our state, Multnomah County. A trainer was hired to begin working with child welfare staff in that area. There are approximately 593 child welfare staff in Multnomah County. Learning Circle training (small groups for focused conversation) titled "It's My Life" is taking place each week and throughout 2010 to accomplish the goal of training all child welfare staff in this area. They are discussing and looking at responsive services for clients regardless of culture, gender, sexual orientation, etc. To date, nearly 300 caseworkers have been trained." (CW)

- "The CW Training Services Unit worked in collaboration with the Equity Foundation - Juvenile Justice Project to assist in the development of a training specific to the Lesbian-Gay-Bisexual-Transsexual-Queer (LGBTQ) group. The training focuses on the disproportionality and disparity of this population and providing responsive services to this population as well as gender appropriate services. Most of this training was held in Multnomah County. In addition to the development of this training, some wording changes in both policy and other training material were presented for modification. In addition, resources and training related material for this community was also added to the DHS Learning Center as a resource for staff and providers." (CW)

During the upcoming year, the Department will work diligently on continuing to implement the gender-specific services policy for children and youth. The department's policy provides a description of expectations and actions designed to enhance equity in the delivery of gender-specific services to children and youth. It provides for assurance that children and youth accessing services receive them in a gender-specific manner that meets their needs. The policy includes expectations for all DHS staff working with programs affecting children and youth including managers, contracts and procurement staff, and direct service providers.

DHS will continue to work on strengthening RFP/Contracts language and requirements to meet gender-specific services policy. Each Division will continue to provide training on gender-specific services to staff providing those services. DHS will continue to raise awareness of the policy to providers and potential applicants. Divisions will continue to review policies and rules applicable to the delivery of gender specific services for children and youth and make recommendations for enhancing services as appropriate. The Department will create a website with access to gender specific services information for children and youth. This resource will provide tools and resources for DHS staff, providers, and customers.

A full copy of the department's policy and procedures for gender-specific services for youth is available at:

SPECIAL REPORT: HB 4131

INSTRUCTIONS: HB 4131 Report

Include a written summary in the Special Report section of the request budget of how the agency is making progress toward the objectives of HB 4131. The summary should include such things as the current ratio and minimum required target ratio as of October 2013. Be sure to include administrative actions taken by the agency in 2011-13 biennium, such as reclass packages and permanent finance plans that roll into the Base Budget, including actions planned through June 2013. Also explain the effect of policy packages on staffing ratios in the requested budget.

SPECIAL REPORT: HB 4131

DHS Plan to move agency wide to more than a 1:11 ratio

DHS started with a budgeted ratio of 1:9 (6689/738) based on information provided by DAS and confirmed by DHS staff.

DHS approached the ratio work from an enterprise perspective with a goal of exceeding the ratio, if possible, and not limiting the review to only those areas under the target ratio.

Through the following actions DHS achieved a budgeted supervisory to non-supervisory ratio of 1:11:

1. In May 2012, DHS abolished 40 supervisory management, 11 non-supervisory management and 12 non-management (including two in communications) positions as part of the plan to achieve the DHS share ($6.1 million) of the statewide $28 million reduction target. This action allowed the agency to receive the required plus-one certification in June 2012 from the Department of Administrative Services, Human Resources Service Division for moving the ratio from 1:9 to 1:10.

2. In October 2012, DHS requested an exception to the 1:11 ratio for Child Welfare supervisors due to the clinical supervision nature of these positions as allowed in HB 4131 (2012) section 1 (4). During the 2007 Legislative Session the legislature made a $3.2 million TF investment to increase the number Child Welfare caseworkers and supervisors. The intended result was to bring Oregon's child welfare supervisor to caseworker ratio to 1:7 which is considered the national best practice standard by the National Resource Center for Organizational Improvement. Before this action the Oregon ratio was 1:9.5. Best practices continue to recommend 1:7 or lower due to the clinical supervision provided by the supervisors. Child Welfare supervisors take years to gain the clinical experience necessary to assist and ensure caseworkers make appropriate safety and case planning decisions for Oregon's children. DHS requests that all child welfare caseworkers and direct caseworker supervisors be excluded from the supervisor to non-supervisor ration calculation. The result is removing 188 supervisors and 1,283 non-supervisors from the equation moving DHS to 1:11.
3. DHS continues to examine all units, especially those with smaller supervisory ratios, to determine if there are natural ways to combine supervisory functions. This requires shifting how supervisory, as opposed to "management" functions are performed. Consolidating supervisory functions where possible will lead to the additional net reclassification of approximately 18 positions to non-supervisory status. In addition, DHS identified positions where the position authority was supervisory but the incumbent was not performing supervisory duties, and vice versa. The appropriate adjustments were made to ensure accuracy of data information. The net result was a further reduction. DHS expects to be completed with the formalization of these shifts by the end of 2012 which maintains the ratio of 1:11.

Impact of GRB policy packages on DHS supervisory ratio

PACKAGE 21: Phase-Ins

Two non-supervisory positions will phase-in as a result of HB 3650 and eight non-supervisory positions will phase into Child Welfare.

PACKAGE 40: Mandated Caseload

In the State Operated Community Programs a new staffing model was built to streamline the staffing and improve service delivery. The resulting package 40 netted the abolishment of three supervisory and 31 non-supervisory positions. In addition, 31 non-supervisory positions will be established for the Aging and People with Disabilities field delivery system.

STRATEGIC FUNDING PROPOSALS

Through the Strategic Funding Proposal process, DHS proposed the net addition of 446 positions, 38 of which are supervisory.

The resulting DHS supervisory ratio will be 1:11.19.

Project Description: DHS and OHA will have up to 66% of active computers over 5 year of age which is beyond industry standard lifecycle. The SDC has also not upgraded DHS network infrastructure in over 9 years in many buildings including the Barbara Roberts and Portland State Office Buildings. Both the Network and outdated computers cause inefficient work processes due to how slow DHS systems operate on these computers and systems. In addition, as modern systems such as HIX and Eligibility Modernization are implemented, a further strain on the performance of DHS and OHA IT systems will occur. Worst case scenario is that some computers will not support these modern applications. Older computers will also not support Windows 7 and Windows XP support will be soon phased out by Microsoft. Due to DHS and OHA's reliance on IT systems to provide services and ensure safety of clients, modernizing the IT tools and Infrastructure is critical to the long term success of DHS and OHA in achieving program outcomes and ensuring safety of Oregonians.

Executive Summary

In the 2007-2009 biennium, the DHS Children, Adult and Families division (CAF) initiated the Self Sufficiency Modernization project (SSM) to automate manual processes and modernize aging self sufficiency data systems. The goal was to establish new avenues for improving access for clients to apply for self sufficiency benefits including Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), Medical, Temporary Aid to Needy Families (TANF) and Employment Related Daycare (ERDC).

Oregon's self sufficiency eligibility systems were designed and implemented in the 1970s and early 1980s and were primarily intended to generate payments. The eligibility process was, and still is, mostly done through manual and paper driven processes.

In 2011, SSM was expanded from a singular technology focus to include modernization of the approach DHS uses to perform work and deliver services. The DHS Modernization effort replaces the former SSM and recognizes the connection between transforming service delivery and technology. Technology re-engineering and replacement is one tool supporting a myriad of service delivery elements including access, eligibility, enrollment, notification, service/benefit utilization, from maintenance to closure.

Automation and modernization of Oregon's self sufficiency system is critical to ensure uniform access for clients across the state. Current systems are largely branch office dependent. Client information required to determine eligibility (demographics, household and financial information) is captured today using a paper process. Information is then manually keyed by caseworkers into multiple systems. There is limited online access for clients to apply for services or estimate eligibility. Eligibility determination by caseworkers is manual and error prone.

Self sufficiency client service begins with client interest and then moves through the application process into client intake, client eligibility determination and provision of benefits. The intent of the DHS Modernization effort (renamed in the 09-11 biennium) is to provide virtual channels of access to clients to determine availability of programs and services, allow clients to apply for programs/services electronically without having to come to a field office and ultimately be able to track and manage their service accounts remotely.

The DHS Modernization project is using an incremental solution delivery approach, starting from a client facing front-end, through caseworker workflow automation to backend system replacement. This project contains inter-dependencies and inter-relationships that are defined to deliver incremental solutions supported under the construct of the overall Self Sufficiency Modernization Program using structured release management practices.

Total expenditures for the Modernization Program are projected at:

07 – 09	$ 3.20 million
09 – 11	$ 9.44 million
11 – 13	$ 23.20 million
13 – 15	$ 49.90 million
15 – 17	$ 39.00 million
Total	$124.74 million

A preliminary model for direct and indirect cost savings has been created. Potential cost benefit value from all DHS Modernization efforts could exceed $49 million annually. Our intention is to continue to refine and validate this model. A list of benchmark metrics is included that can be used throughout the Program lifecycle to help track our progress towards these savings goals.

The goal of Modernization is to automate complex activities such as eligibility determination which benefits clients and improves caseworker accuracy and efficiency. Long term, DHS envisions a more integrated solution environment serving client needs and supporting caseworker efforts more efficiency and effectively.

Purpose

Oregon's self eligibility systems were designed and implemented in the 1970s and early 1980s and were primarily meant to generate payments. The eligibility process is still mostly manual and paper-driven. DHS has incorporated the LEAN system to streamline and increase service delivery efficiencies. However the touch points and basic service delivery model remain unchanged. DHS is now assessing transformational ways to improve service delivery and increase the right level of client interaction and support without increasing staff levels.

Transformation of DHS services, initially focused on eligibility is critical to ensure uniform access for clients across the state; current access to data and management of case files are largely branch office dependent. Client information required to determine eligibility is heavy touch and paper based. Substantial manual effort including keying of data into systems and calculation of eligibility is manual. Case files and case management is paper-based and therefore not readily transferable between caseworkers.

Existing systems do not meet the needs of caseworkers or clients, and continue to put children and families in need at risk. There are two primary legacy systems -- SNAP (FSMIS) and the Client Maintenance System (CMS). There are over 35 additional subsystems used to provide, track and maintain caseworker/client interaction information for SNAP, TANF, ERDC and Medical benefits to clients. These systems have over 100 interfaces to other systems within DHS and OHA and with other external entities.

DHS Modernization will support technology needs and business transformation enabling future business strategies to align to a renewed business architecture. The result will be consistent service delivery and maximized economies of scale in social interfaces without geographical constraints that utilizes a full range of technology options including mobile computing, seamless data access and data sharing. This will lead to multiple positive outcomes, greater efficiency for caseworkers and the ability to send referrals based on need and outcomes.

Oracle software (called a "stack") purchased by DHS and OHA in 2011 facilitates agency ability to establish a foundation based on business functions - comprehensive case management (intake, assessment, determination, authorization of services) including intelligent, informed referrals to community and provider services. DHS will be able to track service success and send enhanced referrals based on outcomes with a system that tracks provider services and quality and who we send. Instituting and leveraging data warehouse and master data management capabilities will enable DHS to establish performance metrics and share data in ways not currently possible because of the limitations of existing siloed systems. Technology solutions will enable expanded service access providing increased flexibility for clients through increased client touch points. Combined business service transformation and technology solutions will maximize client self service and improve client choices with respect to how much they need to engage in person.

Modernization includes re-engineering the client experience, the way case workers interact with clients, the interface between the client and DHS, delivery of benefits and replacement of aging technology systems far past their usability. Current manual, paper intensive processes are cumbersome and make information sharing extremely difficult will be automated and streamlined.

Automating eligibility determination will lead to increased accessibility, quality, accuracy, timeliness and improved accountability. Information will be stored and accessed through a data warehouse that supports federal, state and local operational management and statistical reporting.

Strategically, technology solutions will enable unified case management, a data warehouse based on the principles of master data management, data strategy and data architecture, and a payments system that will replace multiple, disparate payments solutions. The solutions implemented will lay a technology foundation that will further leverage and extend support for other DHS services including intake and screening, case management, permanency, certification, case planning, licensing, provider systems, protective services and developmental disabilities.

More broadly though, our efforts include examining and transforming how we design our facilities, the facility needs, how we connect with our clients and how we expand choices for client engagement. Service delivery locations will utilize the new technology in concert with the need for face-to-face contact.

To achieve these goals and the expanded view of agency modernization, DHS has extended the end date for overall modernization from the initial estimate of 6 years to 10+ years. This will extend overall costs, but the end result will be a significant reduction in the total technology systems used to support DHS – from the current 80+ to a handful of enterprise solutions. This will result in far greater efficiency for case workers in all areas – the ability to view clients and cases in a holistic manner, and having just one version of the truth for data. Technology support will be dramatically improved, time spend implementing policy and other requests will improve significantly and total cost of technology ownership should decline over time.

Problem Statement - Problems, Challenges, and Opportunities

*“We can’t solve problems by using the same kind of thinking we used when we created them.”
- Albert Einstein*

Oregon’s self eligibility systems were designed and implemented in the 1970s and early 1980s and were primarily meant to generate payments. The eligibility process is still mostly manual and paper-driven.

DHS has incorporated the LEAN system to streamline and increase service delivery efficiencies. However the touch points and basic service delivery model remain unchanged. DHS is now assessing transformational ways to improve service delivery and increase the right level of client interaction and support without increasing staff levels.

Transformation of DHS services, initially focused on eligibility is critical to ensure uniform access for clients across the state; current access to data and management of case files are largely branch office dependent. Client information required to determine eligibility is heavy touch and paper based. Substantial manual effort including keying of data into systems and calculation of eligibility is manual. Case files and case management is paper-based and therefore not readily transferable between caseworkers.

Existing systems do not meet the needs of caseworkers or clients, and continue to put children and families in need at risk. There are two primary legacy systems -- SNAP (FSMIS) and the Client Maintenance System (CMS). There are over 35 additional subsystems used to provide, track and maintain caseworker/client interaction information for SNAP, TANF, ERDC and Medical benefits to clients. These systems have over 100 interfaces to other systems within DHS and OHA and with other external entities.

Automation and modernization of these systems is critical to ensure uniform access for clients across the state; current systems are largely branch office dependent. Client information required to determine eligibility (demographics, household and financial information) is captured today using a paper process. Information is then manually keyed by caseworkers into multiple systems. Online access for clients to apply for services and online estimation of eligibility is limited. Eligibility determination by caseworkers is manual and error prone.

Caseworkers rely on more than 35 aging, disparate systems to provide services to clients. These systems utilize aging, difficult to sustain technology. In addition, it is becoming increasingly difficult to hire knowledgeable staff who have skill sets for understanding and maintaining these legacy systems because the development languages are obsolete in the industry.

DHS and OHA systems have myriad of custom-build, non-standard interfaces to other systems, resulting in a technical environment not conducive to making timely, efficient changes in response to federal or state mandates and to support caseworker needs.

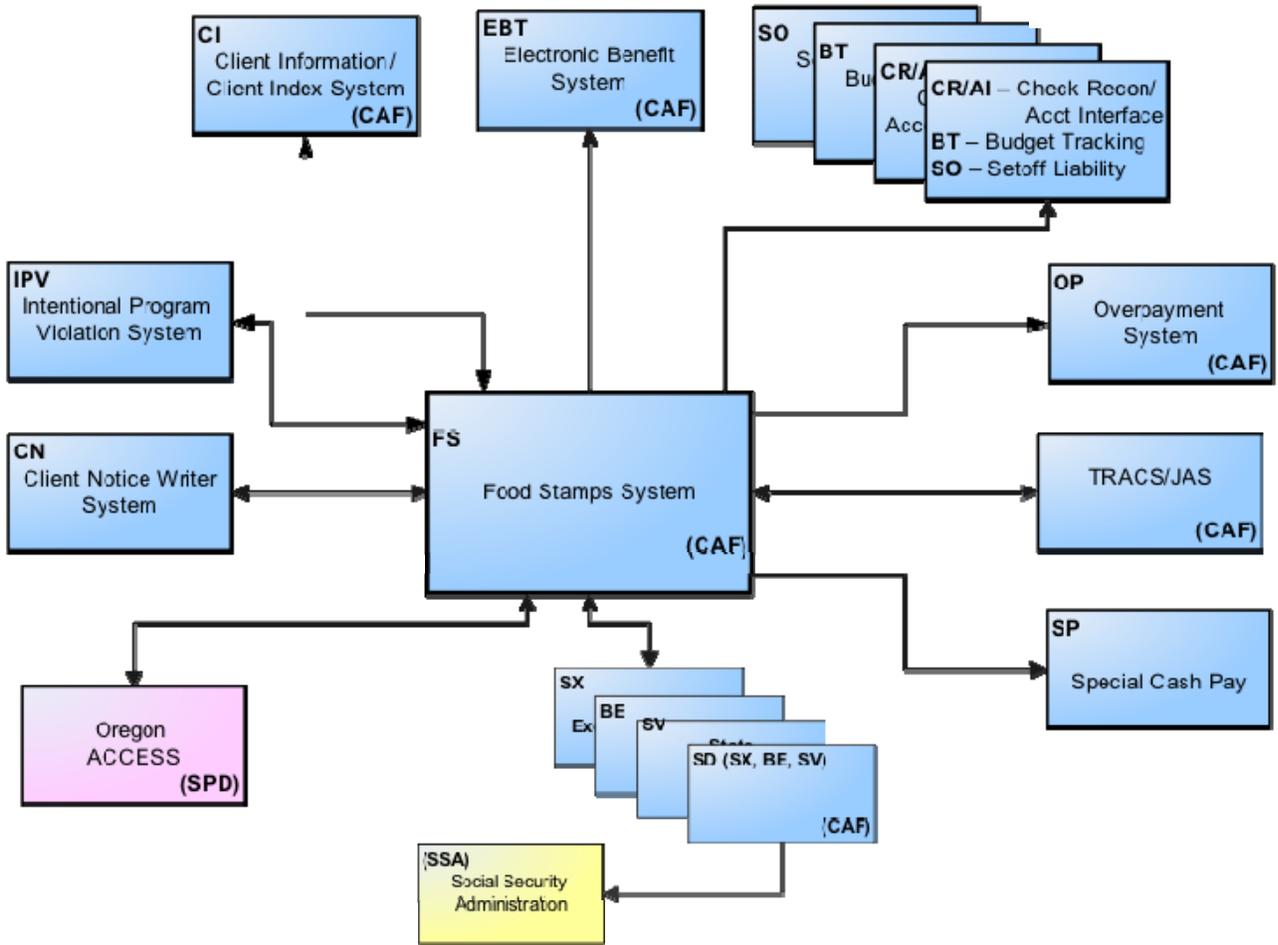

Caseworkers must log the same data multiple times into different system; information is not readily shared between systems.

There are two primary legacy systems – SNAP (FSMIS) and the Client Maintenance System (CMS) – in addition to more than 35 additional subsystems used by Self Sufficiency to provide, track and maintain caseworker / client interaction information for SNAP, TANF, Employment Related Day Care and Medical benefits to clients. Self Sufficiency systems have over 100 interfaces to other systems within DHS, and with external entities.

Graphic showing the current primary state of the Food Stamp system and Client Maintenance System are shown on pages 9 and 10.

visiodocument Updated : 1 / 4 / 2008 10 : 43 AM

Problems/Challenges

- Caseworkers spend a disproportionate amount of time performing data entry and dealing with system inefficiencies, time that could be much better spent providing direct services to clients.
- Information systems were developed in the 1970s and early 1980s and are now 30-40 years old, have weak interoperability, and require manual and duplicate data entry.
- Significant effort is required to implement code changes in response to policy and legislative actions. These code changes are time consuming, repetitive, and expensive because of the complexity of the legacy systems and the utilization of outdated technologies not centered around service oriented architecture and reuse principles. The programming languages used for these systems are no longer readily supported by the general IT industry.
- Increase error rate probability due to manual decision processes and complexity of eligibility rules. These errors lead to both over- and under-payment of program benefits.
- Require staff with a unique talent-set to maintain. Because the legacy systems utilize outdated programming languages, it has become increasingly difficult to hire new staff that understands the legacy technology. Furthermore, the agency understands that significant numbers of currently employed technicians will qualify for retirement soon. Comprehensive succession planning is critical.
- A comprehensive view of a client's service support is not available. All case data is not available to all caseworkers, limiting knowledge of what services a client is receiving and the ability to track other services essential to improving family wellbeing.
- System inefficiencies reduce case worker contact with families. Inefficient system and lack of automation of medical determination contribute to high medical eligibility error rates, excessive administrative and clerical workload for caseworkers, resulting in less time spent providing direct services to clients in need.
- Data duplication increases data security risks and reduces data integrity. This also impacts reporting accuracy and efficiency for client-based programs. SNAP, TANF, Day Care and Medical do not have use of a data warehouse for obtaining uniform data. Duplicate information is stored in multiple systems, with different data structures, security protocols, access and authentication processes.
- Time-consuming and burdensome mandatory reporting is made more difficult by the current manual processes. Mandated reports require pulling information from multiple, unconnected systems to produce program outcome information and provide data on accuracy, improvements and accountability. Report data are summary only, requiring staff to manually extrapolate detail for reporting purposes.
- With more than 35 systems used to support self sufficiency service delivery and over one hundred interfaces between these systems and other systems within and outside of the agency, there are significant potential points of technical failure.
- Many systems utilize obscure or outdated programming languages for which technical resources are in a limited supply and require unique staff skill sets.
- "Emergency" staff to make the mandatory code changes are impossible to acquire. This creates significant risk in the department's ability to support and sustain these solutions.

- Technical staff allocated to support these systems spends the majority of their time providing maintenance (break-fix). Any system modifications or changes, whether to repair an existing problem or respond to legislative mandates, require extensive testing due to system complexity and system interfaces. Changes to any system have a very high probability of impacting other systems. Resolving system problems are challenging, time consuming and expensive. Support is further complicated by the multitude of platforms and languages used in the various systems. This complexity requires staff to be well-versed in a broad array of computing disciplines. The risk profile for systems support is high, due to the high level of staff fragmentation, low ratio of staff to individual systems, and lack of system documentation.
- New federal requirements: The Deficit Reduction Act (DRA) of 2005 added new work rules across virtually every major health and human service program, especially child support, TANF and Food Stamps.
- Antiquated systems that are difficult to modify: Major self sufficiency systems are old, with varying levels of system documentation, adding substantially to the time and cost required to make changes.
- Complicated eligibility determination process: Manual processes and highly complex rules with multiple decision points and large quantities of application information impact staff and clients.
- Internal case management challenges: Case management challenges exist due to lack of effective integrated case management processes that track and report client information across multiple programs.

Opportunities

“Change is the law of life. And those who look only to the past or present are certain to miss the future.” - John F. Kennedy

- The Blind Commission will have access to more timely and accurate statistics of people with challenges. This supports better identification of needs and improves services to the vision-impaired.
- Children and Families Commission access to improved reporting supports better coordination, community mobilization and coordination among community groups, government agencies, private providers and other parties of programs and initiatives for children 0-18 and their families.
- The Economic and Community Development Department will have access to improved reporting. This supports improved investing in human capital and promotes innovation.
- Housing and Community Services access to better statistics will result in better forecasting.
- The Oregon Department of Justice will have easier access to data on services to children.

Desired Business Goals & Objectives

The primary focus of DHS Modernization in 2013-15 will be to continue the incremental, modular approach to transform the business service model and implement technology solutions. Planned efforts will focus on solution delivery case management, financial payments and data architecture, strategy and data warehouse functions.

This functional focus applies to business and technology transformation activities and lays the foundation for future DHS Modernization activities beyond eligibility.

Field staff and DHS clients will benefit through improved internal processes and external client experience. Benefits that Oregon expects from self sufficiency modernization include:

- 1. Adding new channels of access for customers to improve the client experience:
 - Streamlined decision cycles and improved service response time
 - Increased avenues of client access to DHS services
 - Increased client satisfaction through use of modern, interactive, accessible technology
- 2. Improving caseworker capacity and retention due to ability to focus more time on direct client services:
 - Increased productivity for caseworkers due to heightened ability to focus on case work
 - Increased ability for field supervisors to manage caseworker caseloads and monitor case work
 - Increased process efficiency due to workflow refinements
- 3. Reducing training time for new staff due to automation of complex medical determination:
 - Reduced case-worker learning curves
 - Reduced error rate due to automation of manual decision trees
 - Reduced errors due to reduction of repetitive and duplicative manual data entry
- 4. Improving system and reporting information for management staff:
 - Improved tracking of program outcome measures through improved data accuracy and access
 - More efficient interfaces with Child Welfare, Seniors and People with Disabilities and Public Health
 - Improved monitoring and tracking;
 - Ability to provide adequate and efficient documentation of services and referrals
 - Improved system response time and ease of use
 - Improved accuracy and completeness of client case forecasting using on-line session statistical data
 - Improved accuracy of federal and state reporting by capture of essential reporting criteria and data

- Improved data accuracy due to reduction of repetitive and duplicative data entry
- Reduced response time and risk of implementing new policies, legislative mandates, business rules and operational changes, and time and cost to implement federal guidelines through standardized development protocols
- Reduced technology response time to code policy changes and legislative mandates
- Improved security to bring DHS into compliance with state and federal requirements

5. Reducing internal process complexity for staff and managers:

- Increased accuracy of forecasting for DHS budget allowances
- Increased accuracy of benefit level determination resulting in reduced overpayments

6. Improving program information for DHS management:

- More efficient data and program support for service programs and federal grant programs
- Ability to provide information needed to improve performance, increase efficiency and deploy limited resources more effectively, supporting integrity, stewardship and responsibility
- Comprehensive service statistics including accuracy, timeliness and performance in meeting key outcome goals
- Information across program services assisting resource allocation, budgeting processes and legislative requests

7. Enabling and supporting strategic initiatives, and meeting DHS infrastructure needs:

- Aligned technology systems and support for CAF needs
- Aligned to the DHS technology roadmap
- Aligned to industry-standards and best-practices
- Aligned to the principles of code re-use and service oriented architecture principles
- Reduced system and procedure complexity
- Reduced number of technology platforms and interfaces, and reduced development and testing time for system changes
- Technologies with sustainable architecture
- Transition planning and training to transform the skills of current maintenance and development staff from obsolete technologies to current technology skill sets
- Improved ability to hire technical staff that have the skill sets needed to make system modifications

As underlying technology shifts to a modular architecture, changes to application systems in response to legislative rule changes will be easier to develop, test and implement. This change will lead to long-term improvements in technology support efficiency and effectiveness. These improvements will provide caseworkers more time to focus on improving the accuracy, timeliness and quality of the support they provide to Oregonians in need.

Alternatives

DHS procured enterprise-class Oracle software solution in 2011 which serves as the foundation for modernization and delivery of expanded technology capabilities. A brief summary of alternatives/options is listed below:

1. Expand and enhance current systems.

Neither feasible nor cost effective.

2. Purchase or transfer a comprehensive self sufficiency system solution secure system integrator capabilities to support implementation.

This approach establishes an on-going dependency on a system integrator for long term system support which is very expensive over time.

3. Purchase an enterprise solution set with the flexibility to configure to Oregon needs without the long-term support of a system integrator.

Oregon has chosen and is actively using this is the approach which is providing a high level of flexibility, relatively quick to market implementation and the benefits of a sustainable technology solution highly applicable for enterprise level use.

4. Custom develop a comprehensive new self sufficiency system.

This alternative was used to deliver some interim capabilities while determining the best overall solution to support eligibility needs and serve as an enterprise level foundation for other technology and business transformation . Custom developed solutions are expensive to develop and costly to maintain over time. It is also virtually impossible to keep custom applications up with technology progress and is challenging to establish solutions robust enough to serve as enterprise class platforms.

The Assumptions, Costs, Benefits, and Risks (below) are identified holistically across the initiative.

a. Assumptions

- All QA Vendor and QC Vendor costs are development costs, not maintenance costs.
- Development costs are projected costs for the 2013-15 biennium will be funded 50% FF and 50% OF. Resources with the necessary skills including project managers and developers will be readily available.
- Business partners will have adequate capacity to engage in requirements definition, design review and approval, solution selection and user acceptance testing.
- Staffing estimates include a mix of permanent, limited duration positions and consulting services.
- Annex facilities will be needed to house the project team

b. Costs

Oregon DHS has chosen an incremental solution delivery approach, starting from a client facing front-end, through caseworker workflow automation to backend system replacement. This project contains inter-dependencies and interrelationships that are defined to deliver incremental solutions supported under the construct of the overall DHS Modernization using structured release management practices.

This incremental approach enables delivery of functional solutions more rapidly than a single “big bang” project approach which requires multiple biennia before delivering a complete solution. Oregon’s new MMIS implementation is one example of a “big bang” project approach.

Total estimated costs – 2007-2017 (in millions)

	2007-09	2009-11	2011-13	2013-15	2015-17	Total

 2009-11 funding of $12.76 million was estimated as follows for projects:

Client online application - $2.5 million

Caseworker online application processing - $2.5 million

Eligibility automation - $5.0 million

Telephony - $0.5 million

Modernization planning - $1.5 million

c. Benefits

Adding new channels of access for customers to improve the client experience:

- Streamlined decision cycles and improved service response time
- Increased avenues of client access to DHS services
- Increased client satisfaction through use of modern, interactive, accessible technology

Improving caseworker capacity and retention due to ability to focus more time on direct client services:

- Increased productivity for caseworkers due to heightened ability to focus on case work
- Increased ability of field supervisors to manage caseworker caseloads and monitor case work
- Increased process efficiency due to workflow refinements

Reducing training time for new staff due to automation of complex medical determination:

- Reduced case-worker learning curves
- Reduced error rate due to automation of manual decision trees
- Reduced errors due to reduction of repetitive and duplicative manual data entry

Improving system and reporting information for CAF management staff:

- Improved tracking of program outcome measures through improved data accuracy and access
- More efficient interfaces with Child Welfare, Seniors and People with Disabilities and Public Health
- Improved monitoring and tracking
- Ability to provide adequate and efficient documentation of services and referrals
- Improved system response time and ease of use
- Improved accuracy and completeness of client case forecasting using online session statistical data
- Improved accuracy of federal and state reporting by capture of essential reporting criteria and data
- Improved data accuracy due to reduction of repetitive and duplicative data entry
- Reduced response time and risk of implementing new policies, legislative mandates, business rules and operational changes, and time and cost to implement federal guidelines through standardized development protocols
- Reduced technology response time to code policy changes and legislative mandates
- Improved security to bring DHS into compliance with state and federal requirements

Reducing internal process complexity for CAF staff and managers:

- Increased accuracy of forecasting for DHS budget allowances
- Increased accuracy of benefit level determination resulting in reduced overpayments

Improving program information for DHS management:

- More efficient data and program support for service programs and federal grant programs
- Ability to provide information needed to improve performance, increase efficiency and deploy limited resources more effectively, supporting integrity, stewardship and responsibility
- Comprehensive service statistics including accuracy, timeliness and performance in meeting key outcome goals
- Information across program services assisting resource allocation, budgeting processes and legislative requests

Enabling and supporting strategic initiatives, and meeting DHS infrastructure needs:

- Aligned technology systems and support for agency needs
- Aligned to the DHS modernization transformation efforts
- Aligned to industry-standards and best practices
- Aligned to the principles of code re-use and service oriented architecture principles
- Reduced system and procedure complexity
- Reduced number of technology platforms and interfaces, and reduced development and testing time for system changes
- Technologies with sustainable architecture
- Transition planning and training to transform the skills of current maintenance and development staff from obsolete technologies to current technology skill sets
- Improved ability to hire technical staff that have the skill sets needed to make system modifications

d. Risks

- Not funding this package would leave Oregon self sufficiency systems in a state of continually increasing risk for catastrophic failure. This would compromise clients' safety and wellbeing along with caseworkers' ability to serve them as the population at risk increases.

Oregon's ability to adapt and respond to federal and state Health Care Reform requirements would be severely hampered by the existing systems which lack interoperability and do not lend themselves to extracting a complete view of the client. Investments made to date to bring online application capabilities to clients would not be fully leveraged without integration through automated eligibility determination and storage of client entered information into back-end systems.

Opportunities to leverage telephony solutions to benefit clients and reduce caseworker workload would be lost and the risk of keeping legacy systems would increase as the systems age and the staff supporting them retire or leave.

- Significant benefits available through automation of a consistent workflow process will not be realized if the business is unable to streamline down to consistent processes.
- If legacy systems are not eventually replaced, there is a risk of not being able to adequately support and maintain these systems.

Financial Analysis

Staffing model

The costs and staffing is based upon a hybrid sourcing model:

- Permanent Staff: New staff for key roles and positions. Since this work will span multiple biennia, having permanent staff lead and manage this effort will be a key success factor.
- Limited Duration: Permanent staff will be supported with positions that support the ongoing project work as well as business analysis and business process change. Given the size and scope of the work effort, having long-term resources that are not subject to hourly limitations becomes critical.
- Contract / Staff Augmentation: This is considered to be a pool of contract resources to support project needs as they come up. It could include filling temporary resource gaps, finding specific points of expertise, or supplementing existing resources for a project need.
- Outsourced Development: The large amount of development work will require extensive resource time to recruit and manage the development work. Using an external development team will reduce the management overhead required to accomplish the project goals.
- Vendor Solutions: We anticipate utilizing vendor solutions and expertise from Human Service Modernization implementations in other states. These solutions may take the form of “base transfers” or project consultation in specific areas of expertise.

Potential savings

Direct Cost Reduction: Reduced Medicaid payments due to eligibility determination Medicaid eligibility determination is complex, manual, and prone to errors in program assignment. Internal agency estimates reflect that 5 – 7 % of the population receiving assistance is not eligible. An accurate automated solution will be able to reduce program assignment and eligibility errors.

Total Self Sufficiency and SPD related Medicaid payments represent approximately $1.67 billion annually. The field utilization rate for a new automated eligibility solution would start low and increase every year. It would not reach the full potential until most benefit applications could be processed electronically. Therefore, it should not be anticipated that all of the potential savings could be realized for several years after a solution is deployed.

However, for every 1% correction there would be a potential savings of $16.7 million annually.

Indirect Savings: Field Service Improvements

One impact of new technology solutions is to create efficiencies within existing processes. These can be measured in terms of the reduced time it takes to process client applications and benefits requests. This type of gain increases over time as process changes become standardized. Modernization also enables a broader process change, created by re-engineered workflows which allow for a re-direction of resources and new ways to manage case workload.

DHS field workload evaluations show that casework is substantially understaffed. Time savings from automation solutions will ease the caseload burden and reduce the gap between workload need and workforce availability. The purpose of quantifying efficiency in financial terms is merely to provide a means to compare financial investment with productivity gain.

These figures represent a preliminary model based upon the results of the McKinsey analysis as well as internal determinations. The % task reduction represents the estimated time savings to be gained within an individual process task. The % of total time reflects the time spent on each process task in the current workflow.

Process task	Modernization solution	% task reduction	% TOTAL time
Reduce application pending rate	Online application, verification tools	25%	10%
Reduce total application review time	Electronic applications and workflow, verification tools	10%	10%
Reduce eligibility determination time	Automated, integrated eligibility	40%	25%
Reduce narration time through system integration	Integrated solutions, replacement systems	35%	35%
Eliminate data duplication	Integrated solutions, replacement systems	15%	15%
Other processes not subject to improvement	N/A	----	5%

Field Service Time Savings Value

(Note: Some of the figures are rough estimates. More accurate numbers will be incorporated as metrics evolve and refine.)

Self Sufficiency Model

Estimated total annual field costs allocated to casework = $29 million

Average total percent of caseworker time for application and eligibility = 50%

Potential time reductions from automation solutions = 36%

Annual savings value = $5.2 million ($29 million X 50% X 36%)

SPD Model

SPD field staff will also benefit from the Self Sufficiency solution set and will gain substantial time savings. The value model will be similar to Self Sufficiency with some important differences. For this preliminary business case an estimate of 50% of the Self Sufficiency savings value is used ($2.6 million).

The total savings value for Self Sufficiency and SPD field services is estimated at $7.8 million per year.

Improvement metrics

The following represent areas impacted by Modernization improvements. These will be tracked and used throughout the implementation cycles to build a process of continuous improvement.

1. Percentage of client applications that are submitted online.
2. Number of clients who utilize online eligibility estimation.
3. Reduced caseworker time on:
 - a. Client application review
 - b. Client verification
 - c. Narration
 - d. Eligibility determination
4. Improved accuracy rates for:
 - a. Benefits estimation
 - b. Eligibility
 - c. Medicaid program determination
5. Reduced benefits overpayment rate (per program area).
6. Caseworker utilization rate for new automation tools.
7. Reduced total application and eligibility processing time:
 - a. Measured within a single branch or processing center.
 - b. Measured within a district.
 - c. Measured state-wide.
8. Average time to make eligibility policy changes.
9. Improved system maintenance footprint.

Potential savings associated with implementation of a modernized self sufficiency system include:

- Reduced data storage costs due to consolidation of duplicate data from disparate systems.
- Reduced data security costs and risks due to data consolidation in the data warehouse.
- Reduced number of batch jobs due to integration of two major self sufficiency systems into one.
- Reduced number of distributed servers due to technology streamlining sunset of side-systems.
- Reduced number of reports needed to support the field, reduces SDC processing costs.
- Cost avoidance due to increased accuracy and reduced over payments.

Cost Assumptions

Estimated costs for DHS Modernization are based on known state costs and estimated contractor and vendor costs. It is expected that these figures will change over time due to internal and external environmental factors, i.e., cost-of-living adjustments, markets conditions, SDC services rates, etc.

Personal Services costs reflect current state salary rates for the identified positions through 2015. Services and Supplies reflect the fully burdened rates for the identified positions.

Implementation Approach/Timeline

DHS Modernization efforts began in 2007-09 to improve Oregonians' access to DHS services, automate manual processes and modernize aging systems. Efforts are anticipated to continue through the 2015-17 biennium and represent an estimated investment of over $85 million to fully automate and modernize systems and services.

DHS has chosen an incremental solution delivery approach, starting from a client facing front-end, through caseworker workflow automation to backend system replacement. This project contains inter-dependencies and interrelationships that are defined to deliver incremental solutions supported under the construct of the overall DHS Modernization using structured release management practices.

This incremental approach enables delivery of functional solutions more rapidly than a single "big bang" project approach which requires multiple biennia before delivering a complete solution. Oregon's new MMIS implementation is one example of a "big bang" project approach.

The primary focus of DHS Modernization in 2013-15 will be to continue the incremental, modular approach to transform the business service model and implement technology solutions.

Planned efforts will focus on solution delivery case management, financial payments and data architecture, strategy and data warehouse functions.

Modernization program activity is organized into successive overlapping cycles – a series of activities (including projects) with a defining focus and governing principles.

Cycle One: Accelerated Automation Focus

- Component deliverables will provide immediate field service benefit.
- An incremental release model is being used to maximize delivery of improvements to the field and allow for regular updates to features and program area coverage.

Cycle Two: Integrated Services Focus

- Development attention on complete solutions with integrated components.
- Continued automation of manual processes.

Cycle Three: Legacy data conversion

Cycle Four: Unified Case Management Solution

Cycle Five: Replace and sunset legacy systems

Methodologies:

- Program Management models
- Agile Development (where appropriate)
- Hybrid – Waterfall and Agile (where needed)
- PMI Project Management
- PMBOK

Recommendations

Recommend approval of this business case and continuation of funding for automation and modernization of DHS Modernization initiatives in 2013-15.

Alternatives Analysis

DHS procured enterprise-class Oracle software solution in 2011 which serves as the foundation for modernization and delivery of expanded technology capabilities. A brief summary of options is listed below:

1. Expand and enhance current systems

This approach would involve enhancing and consolidating two primary and over 50 secondary systems supporting the Oregon Self Sufficiency Program. Current systems are comprised of inter-related software programs, databases and manual interfaces with over 240 unique programmatic inter-relationships. Even if the systems could be modified to support CAF Self Sufficiency needs, the technical environment would not support DHS objectives, such as flexibility and policy support without fundamental redesign.

This alternative is neither feasible nor cost effective.

2. Purchase or transfer a comprehensive self sufficiency system solution and secure system integrator capabilities to support implementation

This approach establishes an on-going dependency on a system integrator for long term system support which is very expensive over time.

3. Purchase an enterprise solution set with the flexibility to configure to Oregon needs without the long-term support of a system integrator

Oregon has chosen and is actively using this is the approach which is providing a high level of flexibility, relatively quick to market implementation and the benefits of a sustainable technology solution highly applicable for enterprise level use.

4. Custom develop a comprehensive new self sufficiency system

This alternative was used to deliver some interim capabilities while determining the best overall solution to support eligibility needs and serve as an enterprise level foundation for other technology and business transformation . Custom developed solutions are expensive to develop and costly to maintain over time. It is also virtually impossible to keep custom applications up with technology progress and is challenging to establish solutions robust enough to serve as enterprise class platforms.
