EFFECT OF COMMITTEE AMENDMENT: No amendment.

BACKGROUND: In the 1960s, provisions in the Milk Audit and Stabilization Act (ORS Chapter 583) were passed to maintain a stable milk market, ensure an adequate supply of milk, and sustain Oregon's dairy industry. To achieve these goals, the Oregon Department of Agriculture (ODA) was required to audit the records of milk handlers and establish milk marketing areas, production quotas and minimum prices.

In 1970, the federal government adopted an order implementing a milk stabilization program to generate price uniformity and institute equitable production quotas in the Pacific Northwest. Prices under the federal program were generally higher, leading fewer producers to participate in Oregon's milk stabilization program. By 1987, less than one third of Oregon's dairy industry participated in the state's milk stabilization program and ODA abolished the program but statutory provisions remained in place. In a recent review of statutes regulating Oregon's licensed milk industry, ODA determined that the Milk Audit and Stabilization Act is obsolete. Senate Bill 195 would repeal statutes related to milk marketing, production and distribution.
