Be smart. Be safe. Be responsible.

Ingesting marijuana is very different from smoking it. It affects everyone differently - whether it is your first time or you're very experienced. Anytime you have an edible, start slow. Sometimes, it can take an hour or more to feel the full effects. If you're trying something new, if you're a small person, or if you haven't eaten in a while -- all of these things can affect how you will react to the THC. Be sure to check out our Marijuana 101 Card to learn how to best enjoy THC. So be patient, and make sure that you have allowed ample time for your first serving (5mg or less) to activate before consuming more. Here are a few more facts and suggestions to help guide you.

Tips and education on how to have a safe, enjoyable experience with edibles.

Activation times vary. One product may affect you almost immediately while another could take 90 minutes or more to fully activate. If you've never tried edibles before, or if you've never tried Dixie edibles, start with 5mg or less, and give it an hour or more. If it's not strong enough for you, you can always add more the next time around.

Not all edibles are created equally. We are proud of our pure CO_2 extractions that infuse our edibles, but we know that not everyone uses the same science as we do. When evaluating your edibles experience, consider the specific brand and product you are trying rather than just the dose.

Keep away from children. Edibles should be secured safely and out of sight from anyone under the age of 21.

Practice makes perfect. Your edibles experiences can vary widely based on time of day, what you've eaten and when, the size of your body and many other factors. Edibles can be awesome, but it takes a few times to figure out how it's going to make you feel. Be patient, experiment cautiously, don't let others influence your preferences, and take the time to learn what is right for you.

Do not mix. Don't mix THC-infused products with alcohol. The results are unpredictable and could produce an undesirable experience. are always striving to improvi our products, and we'd love your feedback. Share your experience with us at dixieelixirs.com/experience
