I am a practicing physician who treats thousand of patients for many different health conditions. It is my job to diagnose conditions to the best of my ability and then lay out the best course of treatment for each individual patient. It is then the patients job and right to decide the course of care if any. If the government is given the power to decide ones health care I can just imagine whats next. I could see when big Pharma comes up with a new expensive chemo medicine they will send their lobbyist out to the politicians, who will then force cancer patients to use their expensive new drug!
