

I oppose House Bill 3063

As a parent of 4 children who have had reactions to vaccines (high fever and swelling larger than 6 inches in diameter surrounding the injected area,) I wish to keep my rights as a parent to exempt immunizations as is fitting for my family.

Attached is an image of one of my children's reaction to the Tdap

Excerpt from family journal Both girls had some kind of allergic reaction to their Tdap Immunization. Tried to get a follow up appointment because of their rashes turned out to be in vain. I finally got some help when I took the girls to the Rite Aid Pharmacist (via recommendation from my Doc, who wasn't willing to see them both times I called asking for help. No wonder I have hard feelings towards the medical field). The Pharmacist said it looked like an allergic reaction but of course couldn't say for sure since she's not a doctor. We gave both girls some benadryl and the next morning the swelling and redness had subsided. Finally it had been 3 days of fever and swollen injection site.
