

Aron Carlson

When a judge refers to "standard daddy time" being every other weekend. "Equal rights" would mean 50/50 shared.

It should be referred to as standard parenting time. But when you exclude one parent over the other. For no reason for being a Male. What's even more appalling is when you live in a so called "equal" state.

Yet we live by these standards of every other weekend. Because one or the other parent can't agree to 50/50 so a judge has to get involved. Then refers to it as "standard daddy time". Be honest unless the mother says so that's what we get. Go to work shut up and pay be happy with the little time we bless you with your child. Dad's dont have feelings only the mother does. To have that mentality is sick and twisted and not "equal rights". For to long this has been happening to fathers. It happened to my father and many fathers before him. Now its happening to the fathers now. When we live in the so called "equal rights" day and age. Change needs to happen. But it will only happen when people admit fathers do not have "equal" rights .to their children.

