

Hello,

I was extremely moved when reading about Taylor Law. Just a month and a half ago, I lost my brother due to his fight with addiction. He had a heart attack due to overdosing and suspect it was laced, waiting for full autopsy results. Watching my parents go through losing their child is the most horrific thing. No parent should ever have to lose their child. Nor should they have to question what they did or didn't do to cause this to occur. Nothing will bring back my brother and I have to deal with never ever getting another big brother hug from him. There are so many things I will always miss and I can't believe he is gone. Something has to change. We can't keep losing amazing people.

Thank you,
Kristen Peterson
