

To whom it may concern,

I've had a chance to talk with several my daughters friends whom are all teenagers, and not one of them have any clues to any of the current politics here in Oregon or the repercussions of such politics. The kids barely have a grasp of any history, and haven't even had civics class yet! Why would they be allowed to vote with no knowledge of such things? Why was something like this ever considered? These are children that can't grasp any of this at this age of their life. I've asked several kids in their late teens, and they barely have a grasp of the three branches of government and no knowledge of current issues either local or nationally. Please reconsider this bill that doesn't make any sense!

Respectfully,

Mike Sumner
