

I see a reoccurring theme coming from this legislature. Thankfully some still believe in our founding principals and laws. This proposed bill takes away property from their owners without due process. What are these people and their proxies afraid of. Using the power of the State against the individual without due process is tyranny. I would encourage legislators to go into the great hall in the Capitol and read the words chiseled in stone.