

Hi Senator Roblan and Colleagues,

It is critically important to pay for at least 2 professionally trained teachers per school for dyslexic children. It will cost only $2,000 per teacher and they will save 20% of the brightest children in their schools! I know this because my child was one that was NOT saved by the schools, but he was saved by a dentist who was an Orton-Gillingham certified tutor! I now travel from school to school as an O-G Tutor saving as many kids as I can, but there are not enough trained tutors to cover the need. By training teachers for each school you will be helping the schools not break the FAPE law, which they are currently doing by not teaching these dyslexic kids to read. So protect the schools from lawsuits and get these bright dyslexic kids reading, writing and spelling.

I know you know first hand the heartbreak of children not receiving the proper reading instruction for their disability. Please help and fund these teachers. Sincerely, Jennifer M Pultz

Sent from my iPhone