Coast State Park Economic Contribution

- More than half of the state park system's 50+ million visits occur in the coast region.
- With a few north coast exceptions, most people feel at ease and uncrowded when visiting the coast.
- The Oregon coast provides a vast landscape for public recreation.

- Hiking and walking, enjoying scenery, and relaxing in one spot are the most common activities.
- Walking and visiting historic sites have seen the most growth from 2011 to 2017.
- Work to connect the remaining 15-20% of the Oregon Coast Trail is ongoing.

- The opportunity translates to a significant management responsibility.
- The chance for a personal connection with a high quality natural resource attracts most people to visit.
