

This bill is discriminatory. I live in Eastern Oregon. There are many people living in this area who do not have computers. There are even more who do not have printers for their computers. What difference can it possibly make who prints the signature sheet? Individuals do not print their own ballots. In fact, there is a bill that would require taxpayers to pay for postage to return the ballots printed by someone other than the person voting. The only objective, or basis for this bill is to exclude rural Oregonians and poor people who cannot afford electronics from being able to participate in the political process.

Unless this committee plans on only allowing people with enough money to own a computer and a printer to participate, this bill needs to die in committee.
