BACKGROUND:

The Oregon Medical Board’s (Board) mission is to protect the health, safety, and wellbeing of Oregonians by regulating the practice of medicine, including licensing physician assistants (PAs). To be eligible for a PA license In Oregon, an individual must have: (1) graduated from a PA training program approved by the American Medical Association Committee on Allied Health Education and Accreditation (CAHEA), or the Commission on Accreditation for Allied Health Education for Allied Health Education Programs (CAAHEP), or the Accreditation Review Commission on Education for the Physician Assistant (ARCPEA), and (2) passed the Physician Assistant National Certifying Examination (PANCE) given by the National Commission on Certification of Physician Assistants (NCCPA).

Currently, a supervising physician may use the services of a PA in accordance with a practice agreement, which is a written agreement between a PA and a supervising physician or supervising physician organization (SPO) that describes what and how the PA will practice. Supervising physician or SPO is responsible for the direction and review of medical services provided by a PA.

House Bill 4081 modifies the practice arrangement between physician assistants and supervising physicians.
