BACKGROUND:

Health care interpreters facilitate communication between patients with limited English proficiency (LEP) and health care providers in-person or over the phone. In 2001, a 25-member Health Care Interpreter Council was established to ensure the development of competent and accessible language access services. House Bill 2419 (2015) modified the membership of the Oregon Council of Health Care Interpreters, clarified qualifications and certification requirements for health care interpreters, and specified that the policy of the Legislative Assembly is to require the use of certified or qualified health care interpreters (HCI) whenever possible, including American Sign Language interpreters. According to the American Community Survey (2019), nearly 600,000 Oregonians (over 15% of the state's population) speak a language other than English at home.

The Oregon Health Authority's Office of Equity and Inclusion offers two levels of credentialing for health care interpreters - qualification and certification. Both credential levels require 60 hours of training and demonstrated proficiency in both English and a non-English language. OHA also maintains the Health Care Interpreter Registry that allows people to find and connect with qualified and certified health care interpreters.

House Bill 2359 requires health care providers to work with registered health care interpreters and updates other requirements related to health care interpreter registration and use.
