 - WFHDC credit and interaction with other income support programs

Policy Purpose

“To enable low-income working families to care for young children and disabled dependents by offsetting care costs so that they may be gainfully employed or attending school full-time. The desired effect...is to provide additional tools to help these families climb out of poverty”
(Rep. Keny-Guyer, 2015)

- Design policy that encourages or enables people to maintain, return and/or enter workforce (accounting for other government transfer payments)

Credit Development

- Created in 2015 via combining of two tax credits:
 - 1) Child & Dependent Care
 - 2) Working Family Child Care
- Simplifying process for taxpayers qualifying for both credits
- Extending more benefit to lower income taxpayers through single refundable credit

Credit Description

- Refundable personal income tax credit
- Benefits low & middle income households with employment related dependent care expenses

*Credit = Credit % * Qualified Expenses of Care for a Qualifying Individual*

- Credit % is based on taxpayer's:
 - Adjusted gross income (AGI) as a percentage of federal poverty level (FPL) and,
 - Age of youngest qualifying dependent
- Some connection to federal child and dependent care credit
