BACKGROUND:

Nonprofit college access organizations work to promote access to higher education for students to students who come from low-income backgrounds, underrepresented communities, are English language learners, or would be first-generation college students. These organizations operate a variety of programs, such as partnerships with schools to offer supplemental educational assistance in K-12 settings.

The Access to Student Assistance Programs in Reach of Everyone (ASPIRE) program was established by the Legislative Assembly in 2007 as part of House Bill 2729. This program connects high school students with volunteer mentors to offer assistance with scholarships and other financial aid opportunities in higher education.

House Bill 2412 appropriates moneys to the Higher Education Coordinating Commission to the General Fund to issue grants to college access organizations.
