

HB 3164 -1, -2 STAFF MEASURE SUMMARY

House Committee On Judiciary

Prepared By: Gillian Fischer, Counsel

Meeting Dates: 2/24, 3/8, 3/10, 3/23, 3/25, 4/6

WHAT THE MEASURE DOES:

Modifies the circumstances under which a person's failure to obey a lawful order by a peace officer or parole and probation officer constitutes the crime of interfering with a peace officer. Provides that a person may not be arrested for or charged with interfering with a peace officer or parole and probation officer for conduct that would constitute any other criminal offense.

ISSUES DISCUSSED:

EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

-1 Replaces the measure. Modifies the crime of interfering with a peace officer by removing provision relating to failure to obey a lawful order. Provides that a person may not be arrested for or charged with interfering with a peace officer or parole and probation officer for conduct that would constitute any other criminal offense. Declares an emergency, effective on passage.

-2 Replaces the measure. Modifies the crime of interfering with a peace officer by removing provision relating to failure to obey a lawful order. Provides that a person may not be arrested for or charged with interfering with a peace officer or parole and probation officer if the person is arrested or charged for another offense based on the same conduct. Declares an emergency, effective on passage.

BACKGROUND:

Under current law, a person commits the crime of interfering with a peace officer if that person refuses to obey a lawful order by the peace officer or parole and probation officer, unless the person is refusing to obey as an act of passive resistance.

The term "passive resistance" is not defined in statute. In 2017, the Oregon Supreme Court decided State v. McNally, 361 Or. 314, (2017) and created a definition that provides a framework for courts to determine when conduct is protected as passive resistance and excluded from criminal prosecution. The definition articulated by the McNally court of the term passive resistance includes any "noncooperation with a peace officer's lawful order that does not involve violence or active measures, whatever the motivation for the noncooperation and regardless of whether the noncooperation takes the form of acts, techniques, or methods commonly associated with civil rights or other organized protest."

HB 3164 narrows the scope of conduct encompassed by the statute by limiting the criminality of a refusal to obey an order to circumstances when an officer is performing duties regarding another person or conducting a criminal investigation and the refusal involves an overt act. It also prohibits the arrest of a person for interfering with a peace officer for conduct that would constitute any other criminal offense.
