No amendment.

BACKGROUND:

The federal Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act of 2014 overhauled the country's workforce and job training framework at the state and local level, providing funding and a framework for one-stop delivery of workforce development services. The Oregon Workforce and Talent Development Board coordinates statewide policy for workforce development through several state agencies, including the Higher Education Coordinating Commission (HECC), the Oregon Employment Department (OED), the Oregon Commission for the Blind (OCB), the Department of Human Services (DHS), the Bureau of Labor and Industries (BOLI), and the Oregon Business
