No amendment.

BACKGROUND:

House Bill 2611, passed by the Legislative Assembly in 2013, allowed specified health care professional regulatory boards, including the Board of Psychology, to adopt rules that require licensees to receive cultural competency continuing education (CCCE). The bill required that the specified board track and report the boards' CCCE requirements and their respective licensees'/members' CCCE participation levels to the Oregon Health Authority. In 2019, the Legislative Assembly passed House Bill 2011, which directs, instead of voluntarily allows, the specified health care professional boards to require people authorized to practice the profession regulated by the board to complete CCCE.

Senate Bill 610 creates a psychology provider incentive program to provide financial incentives to psychology doctoral students and licensed psychologists who complete courses that provide cultural competency training.
