Allows a prosecuting attorney, for the purposes of initiating a criminal proceeding within the statute of limitations, to unseal records and outlines process. Modifies eligibility, procedure, standards, for filing a motion to set aside judgment for a person who has been found guilty except for insanity (GEI). Prevents the prosecuting attorney from conditioning a stipulation to a GEI judgment on agreement a defendant's waiver of ability to set aside the judgment. Directs the State Court Administrator to create forms for motions and orders to set aside.

ISSUES DISCUSSED:

- Aligning look-back period with waiting period
- Complicated process, even for attorneys who practice in the area
- Barriers to expungement, for those who qualify, leads to barriers in housing and employment
- Crimes that qualify for set aside remains unchanged
- Current statute treats non-convictions akin to convictions
- Longest wait time in the country of 20 years for certain crimes
- Current standard of review
- State v. Langan (301 Or. 1)

EFFECT OF AMENDMENT:

Replaces the measure.

BACKGROUND:

If a sentence on a qualifying conviction has been served and a defendant does not have any pending criminal charges, and after the passage of the specified period of time, a person may apply by motion to the appropriate court for an order setting aside an arrest or conviction. A copy of the motion and a set of the person's fingerprints are served on the prosecuting attorney, who then has an opportunity to contest the motion. The court determines, after a hearing, whether setting aside the conviction or arrest is warranted. If the motion is allowed, the court enters an order containing the required findings and setting aside the arrest or conviction. The court must include an order sealing the record of conviction and other official records.

Senate Bill 397 A modifies the procedure for filing a motion to set aside conviction, arrest, citation or charge, eliminates fees, fingerprinting and background check, and reduces the waiting period for filing the motion for several categories.
