

OFRI support;

As I see it OFRI is an educational organization... the organization educates all in Oregon about the good and bad in forest management. They document how good management helps maintain the quality of our air, water and land that ultimately contributes to the quality of life that ALL Oregonian's enjoy. To put them out of business will have both short term and long-term negative effects on climate change, water quality, air quality, and a host of other things that one might imagine. I am a small woodlands owner that tries my best to manage my forest and other lands to maintain high quality standards. Not being educated in forest management before I started managing my forest, I could have easily made poor management decisions. But thanks to OFRI and other organization I follow, I think I am doing the right thing for my forest and all of Oregon. We need to keep OFRI operational and well supported to benefit the quality of life for all Oregonians. Thanks in advance for keeping OFRI operational.
