

Continuing to allow remote meetings after COVID will make it much more accessible for citizens to engage in our government. This will both support individuals feeling connected through state structures as well as make our state laws better.