

I have two properties that I rent out as a means of preparing for retirement. Having tenants in those properties is essential for me to be able to afford the mortgages. My understanding is that the current bill would prevent me from taking any action towards tenants who cannot pay their rent. This would extend into February 2022. If I understand this bill correctly, then I oppose it. It seems like it would erase my ability to maintain the rental property, thus effecting my retirement plan, loan by the bank and I don't know whether the tenants would be able to stay there as the properties go into foreclosure.
