

Folks deserve to have opportunities available to them upon release from Prison. It is of great use to have more information about lessening barriers if we want to ensure that people don't return to prison. Further, if the point of sending people to prison is to "rehabilitate" or for public safety then we need to be looking at the repercussions of prison and re-entry, are we setting people up for success? What are the opportunities after prison? This is vital information.
