

It is time to start educating our younger generation about the complete history of our state and nation. As a career educator I know how important education is and how powerful it can be to open minds and make cultural changes. If we are to provide opportunities for prosperity, safety, and responsible citizenship for all citizens, we must address systemic racism. And where else can we begin but in our own state.
As John Lewis said, "if not now, when?"