Chair Holvey, Vice-Chairs Bonham and Grayber, and Members of the House Business and Labor Committee,

Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony on HB 2358. My name is Jessisca Maravilla, and I am with the Policy Director for Causa, Oregon Immigrant Rights Organization. For over 25 years Causa, a nonprofit organization, has worked to improve the lives of Latino immigrants and their families through civic engagement, leadership development, coalition building, and policy advocacy across the state of Oregon. We envision a community that welcomes and values the contributions, strengths and assets of Latino immigrants and their families. Causa strongly supports HB 2358 to provide farmworker overtime pay.

HB 2358 guarantees overtime pay to agricultural workers after 40 hours in a workweek at one and one-half times the employee's regular rate of pay. This includes farmworkers who are paid by piece-rate (how many crops they produce) or hourly. Oregon would join five other states (California, Washington, New York, Minnesota, Hawaii) with some sort of overtime pay for agricultural workers. Additionally, HB2358 extends overtime benefits to farmworkers which have been available to the majority of other workers since the Federal Labor Standards Act of 1938.

Farmworker overtime is important to Causa because farm workers are frontline workers who continue to show up despite facing a respiratory pandemic, wildfires, and more recently, a winter storm. Agricultural workers deserve to be paid fairly for their labor.

This policy is long overdue based on the racist legacy of excluding agricultural workers from overtime pay in the Federal Labor Standards Act (1938) to maintain social and economic control of these workers. Back then, the majority of farmworkers were Black and now we see most farmworkers are immigrants from Latin America and the Caribbean.¹ Farmworkers are underpaid and exploited for their cheap labor. According to the National Agricultural Workers Survey, individual farm workers earn $15,000 to $17,499 a year and families are estimated to make between $20,000 and $25,000 a year.² Their work is place-based and time-bound (due to crop harvest windows), which puts them at higher risk of adverse health effects from prolonged exposure to extreme heat and wildfire smoke.

Wildfires happen most often during peak harvesting season when workers can earn the most money and may be forced to choose between their health and putting food on their families' table.³ Most of these workers and their families do not have healthcare coverage through their employer. As a result, migrant and seasonal farmworkers experience higher rates of specific health problems such as diabetes, hypertension, cardiovascular disease and cancer than most other Oregonians.

According to OHA, there are an estimated 174,000 migrant and seasonal farmworkers, and related family members, that contribute to Oregon's multi-billion dollar agricultural industry.⁴ HB 2358 creates economic stability to a class of workers who have been excluded from basic labor standards such as minimum wage, collective bargaining rights, and overtime pay. With better wages, there will be an increase in consumer spending, especially in local businesses and rural communities.

We urge you to vote yes on HB 2358 to ensure farmworkers in Oregon are adequately paid for their labor.

Sincerely,

Jessica Maravilla
Policy Director, Causa Oregon
