

Our land use planning laws have been both positive and provident for Oregon's development...but need to be updated to accommodate the realities of climate change and the need for equity among economic interests. History will reward forward thinking and innovation.