

I would like to add my voice to that of the many Oregonians who support a strong civics education in our schools. A participatory democracy can only succeed when citizens know how our government works and that it is their responsibility to be well informed about historical and current issues. Voting is a duty that requires knowledge and discretion.