

I gotta say that the recent acts of picking on wake boats is getting out of hand. This is literally not right! You can't strip away our rights on the water. Everybody deserves to have fun on the water, but with the tensions between lake house owners and wake boats makes it difficult. The people who bought property on the lake did not buy the lake. So, what gives them the right to dictate the rights of the water. Yes, there are a few wake boats that go too close to shore. But, the majority of us respect the distance, to continue doing what we love. If you limit the ballast capacity, what are the 100s of wake boat owners going to do? Stop doing what they love? That is absolutely infuriating! How'd you like it if you were stripped from your passions. I've spent more time in the water than most, and waves are always circulating the lake. I've seen bigger waves formed from wind than I have from surf boats. It's not just surf boats creating waves. Every boat on the water makes a wake. So stop picking on surf boats, and realize how hypocritical you are. If lake owners don't want waves, tell them to stop boating themselves. I mean that's how absolutely outrageous this is. Like I said, everybody deserves a fun time on the water. So please, with my condolences don't proceed with this.
