

Absolutely no! There is no one alive today in these United States that either owned a Slave, nor was a Slave! For far too long the narrow releasing/teaching of "Histories" have not only resulted in widening the separation of peoples, continuing the false beliefs of entitlements, but have provided excuses for personal failings and shortcomings. Either all Americans are allowed to be equal in their ability to attempt happiness or they are not, and monetary subsidies will not be of aid in their search except in the hindrance of those equaling deserving. Truly, if the children were responsible for the errors and sins of their parents, then none of us alive today could do little but serve our lives in "Reparations."
