

As a young organic farmer living in Oregon, I want to assure a livable and nourishing future for all of us food producers and our constituents. We must work to research and enact policies supporting the work of organic agriculture, indigenous land management and community stewardship of our lands.