

I have worked in the private school system for awhile. The amount children that come to our schools that are truly suffering from a lack of education is so sad. Then I see them after they start at our school they learn how to use critical thinking, and know their multiplication tables, or how to diagram a sentence and write in cursive. To lock a school down and decide what it teaches or how is not okay. Freedom of religion is important but so is a parents right to pay for better schooling. To limit them in sports as punishment is even more ridiculous.
