

As the parent of my 3 children, I raise them up in the way that I believe they should be raised. I found a private school that aligns with what I believe and my children love it and are thriving. If ODE has any say, they will begin thinking that they know what is best for the private school and ultimately my children. How is this even right?? Do they tuck my children into bed at night? Do they listen to their dreams, their fears, their questions? I trust the private school educators and administration that are in charge at my children's school. I know them well and they are like family to me. I do NOT want ODE to come in and think they know best, because they do NOT! They will try to tell my children what they think they should learn. If I wanted this, I would send my children to public school! But instead I am paying a lot of money to send them to private. Please! Stay out of our business ODE!!!