

Hello and Good Afternoon,

I want to please ask you to deny this motion. Private education is a beautiful opportunity for sculpturing minds, registering these private schools with the Department of Education would be a mistake. Private schools have the ability to teach more than just math, English, and history. They also teach students how to grow in character, be leaders, and critically think in ways outside of a subject in school. Private Schools also prepare adolescents for the real world exceptionally well. Private school students are well- rounded and ready to take on the world.

I implore you to re-consider registering private schools with the Department of Education.

Thank you,
Riley Anderson
