Sarah,

I just tried calling you but your mailbox is full so I was unable to leave a message there.

Unfortunately Dr. Elbert has declined the appointment. He feels your sons case is too complex and he's also not comfortable being filmed. He's the only physician with our group who has been willing to see kids. However I am also not surprised that he is backing away from doing work with minors and OMMP because there has been an exceptionally high rate of harassment by the medical boards against doctors who are willing to certify minors. It's a great injustice and I have fought against it for many years but like many physicians before me we realize that the medical boards are fiercely anti-cannabis and are willing to destroy doctors reputation and careers in particular around the subject of minors getting access to cannabis.

I've been a researcher and physician that specializes in cannabinoid medicines for 10 years now and I have no doubts about the beneficial qualities of using cannabinoids for autism. I encourage you to continue using it for your son.

However the issue of providing OMMP certifications in the state of Oregon has become highly politically dangerous area of work for doctors.

I'm happy to get on the phone and discuss more with you if you'd like. You can try me at 503-272-8789 after 3 pm.

Kind regards,

Christian Lé, MD
