

Dear Chairman Dembrow,

My husband and I strongly oppose SB 223. This bill is a significant threat to religious freedom and parental choice. It also undermines private education in Oregon by making it subject to oversight by the state.

My child's educational needs are best served by our private Christian school (Crosshill Christian). We chose to enroll my child in faith-based, private education. That was our choice as parents.

SB 223 would essentially force private schools to register with the state or cut off student access to choir, sports, and other interscholastic programs. Our schools already prioritize student safety, but this bill goes too far.

It's unfair to punish our children by excluding them from enriching extracurricular activities that are currently offered to both public and private school students.

SB 223 adds expenses to private schools and early childhood programs with little (if any) benefit to the schools or students served by them. The Legislature passed a law in 2019 to protect private school students, and SB 223 is unnecessary in light of that legislation.

Our child attends Crosshill Christian School and our baby boy will attend as well once he's of age, and there's a reason that they don't attend public school. Faith is very important to our family, and we are looking for a different kind of education.

It shouldn't matter what type of school our children attend. We send our child to private school, and we also pay Oregon taxes that pay for Oregon's public education system. My children should have the same ability to participate in extracurricular activities as their public school peers.

Please don't use our students as leverage in political fights. We ask you to stand with parents, like us, and vote 'NO' on SB 223. It's unnecessary and will only harm our children.

Thank you for your consideration on this matter,

Sincerely,

Andrew & Josie Schmucker
