

Our rivers have been known as world class fisheries for salmon and steelhead. I started fishing the upper Rogue for salmon in 2015 and would usually be able to land a couple of hatchery fish every other trip or so. This last year 2020 I had an empty catch card. Myself and other local fishermen (as well as tourism) pump money into the economy through our local purchases as well as supporting our guides who rely on the fishery to make a living. We owe it to the community of anglers and to supported industries and businesses to do better.
