

I would like to see all processing of cannabis done where it is tightly monitored on what is done with the waste water, how the thc is extracted and what is done with the waste water after it is done. I have first hand been involved in cleaning up a grow operation and processing operation, it was a borderline hazmat site when operating it looked to me. Their needs to be strict monitoring of this stuff and make sure they follow the rules, most don't follow any rules.
