

My whole family turn to naturopathic doctors for all our health needs except emergency situations. Naturopathic care is wholistic and person-centered. The doctors who work in this field are truly looking to heal the root causes of disease and not just cover up symptoms. The naturopathic doctors I have seen have all been intent on providing research-based medicine. These doctors are professionals who see the patient as a whole person and consider the interconnected nature of the emotional, mental and physical aspects of health. They are essential workers in the healing arts. Please offer them the compensation they truly deserve.
