

The ecosystem imbalance created by killing contests supports banning the contests. Seven states have prohibited wildlife killing contests. Wildlife killing contests are still legal in 40+ U.S. states, but Americans are increasingly demanding an end to this bloodsport as the events come to light. Recent polling of Oregon voters found that a solid majority support an end to coyote killing contests in the state.