

Bill SB 201 goes against every grain of corporation law. Corporations are deemed to be an individual entity that survives even after the death of its officers and members. Therefore, officers and members including those employed by the corporation are not responsible for entity debt. In this case, corporation debt.