

Please approve this bill so that it can move forward towards adoption. Voters, including me, were clear in November that we wanted real finance reform. Based on Rob Davis' report in The Oregonian, corporations (including unions) and wealthy individuals have so heavily influenced legislators that many of them are able to avoid any fundraising from their constituents. Corruption has followed, the timber industry being a good example. This bill will give more power to ordinary citizens and will provide transparency and accountability for campaign finance.
