

I urge that this not only pass, but that mix farming be prohibited to reduce the risk of zoonotic diseases to humans even more. Confining a wild species under stressful conditions so close together in large numbers creates a huge risk of zoonotic diseases spreading rampantly between the species, and mutating to human transmission. No one needs mink coats!!!! Fake fur that looks realistic is now available. Mink farming is not worth the risk, and even this legislation only very slightly lowers the risk.
