

as a homeowner with primary and secondary residence, needed for multiple work location purposes, I maintain two homes (Portland and Eugene). This is made possible for reasons including security (consistent presence in the house) and financial (mortgages) obligations through making the house a shared home. Having a housemate who decides to turn the home into a day care would mean an end to the peaceful enjoyment of the premises (odd work hours necessitate the need to sleep during daytime hours), which would mean an end to sharing the home, which would necessitate selling the home, negatively impacting our ability to work in both cities. Surely not the desired intent of the bill!
