

Time does not fit the crime: With closing institutions to save money why would we not look at young people that went in under measure 11 without the ability of parole? Give them the opportunity to lessen their time based on their conduct. Young people receiving a sentence in their teens are raised in prisons when they receive 20 - 30 years. In prison they have had the chance to finish high school, go to college classes, work different jobs - IT, DMV, Service Dog training, etc. and are ready to integrate back into society. Adults are not given these kind of sentences.
