

During a pandemic is the worst time to consider new taxes. People, communities, counties are all still reeling from loss of jobs, to loss of homes from devastating wildfires. At some point the state needs to decide what is more important, government or the economy. We can't continue to drive business out of this state. At some point there will be no businesses left to tax.